

IV Catheter Vents

IV Catheter Vents are self-sealing components assembled into IV catheter devices, the vents allow air or gases to freely pass through the porous media but when getting wet, block liquids by its self-sealing function, thus shutting off the air flow.